MA9262: Notification on Submission

Masuk: Jum'at 24 November 2023

v.matiukhina@manuscript-adminsystem.com

Jum, 24 Nov, 22.32 (2 hari yang lalu)

Dear Pancawati Hardiningsih,
the manuscript FINANCIAL AND NON-FINANCIAL INFORMATION: A LITERACY OF THE RELEVANCE OF ASIAN VALUE SUSTAINABILITY REPORTING IN INDONESIA, submitted to Investment Management and Financial Innovations Journal, needs to be revised.

Comments:When finalizing the manuscript in accordance with the requirements of the journal, please pay special attention to the fact that this is a research paper, which is a final report on the finished original experimental study (the structure is Abstract, Introduction, Literature review, Method, Results, Discussion, and Conclusion).

<https://www.businessperspectives.org/index.php/journals/investment-management-and-financial-innovations#submission-guidelines-for-authors>

The length of the manuscript (maximum) should be up to 6,000 words (not including the abstract, list of sources and appendices). Divide the material into sections correctly. Clearly and specifically formulate the purpose of the study! The article's title should be specific, indicate the purpose of the study, and correlate with it. The article's purpose is indicated in the abstract, at the end of the literature review, and in the Conclusion.

The Abstract (its volume is 150-250 words, but abstracts are welcome, in which the volume approaches 200-250 words) should have the following sequence of presentation of the material - relevance, purpose, method, result, and conclusion. This is exactly the sequence that should be. Most of the Abstract should be devoted to the result. Give a quantitative description of the result. Do not enter in the abstract and do not use (also in conclusions) unestablished abbreviations.

Keywords should be chosen responsibly. You should not give the term, and then also its abbreviation. Their number is limited (about 8-10 words on average). They should not be repeated, just as they should not repeat the words from the article's title. Basically it should be words, not phrases. They should reflect the main idea and content of the article.

JEL Classification codes should be clarified. Their number is on average 2-4, and they should be placed in order from the main (important) to the secondary ones.

The Introduction is a half-page - a page of text devoted to the relevance of the research topic and the formulation of the SCIENTIFIC problem (in which this research is being conducted) as a whole. You should not conduct a literature review here. There is no need for a literature review here. It is not necessary to tell how the research will be conducted, how the article is structured, what is the purpose of the research and what tasks the authors will solve.

The Literature review should include 30-40-50 analyzed sources. It should begin with a few introductory sentences. The sequence of the text must have logic (it is not determined by the place of the mentioned work on the shelf). It must be subordinated to the purpose of the study. Do not start each paragraph with a reference to the source, but structure the text in such a way that one paragraph is an analysis of one source. The review should be concluded with 2-3 generalizing sentences. Then the purpose of the study should be formulated. After that, formulate hypotheses (right here, all together, and do not insert text between them). Of course, if you foresee them. As for the hypotheses, they should be formulated clearly and unambiguously! They should be clear and not repeat each other.

Then there should be a Methods section. Here you should describe the algorithm (procedure) of the study and provide primary data for calculations or indicate the sources of their receipt. This should be done following the logic of the academic presentation of the material.

Further, the main section of the article is RESULT. Here you should not only present the results obtained (analytics, systematization, calculations ...), but also explain them, and describe the data of tables and figures in textual form. If the hypotheses were predicted, then provide the results of their verification.

The Discussion section should include a discussion of the study's results, a comparison with previous ones, a discussion of why the authors have such results, and an indication of future prospects.

The Conclusions should have the following logic - indicate the purpose of the study, briefly demonstrate the obtained result, and indicate what conclusions should be drawn from it. Do not cite sources in the Conclusions, and do not repeat sentences from the abstract here.

Don't start chapters with subsections. Don't break sections into a bunch of subsections. Variables in formulas must have established designations. They should be explained. Captions for figures and tables should be clear and understandable, even if they are shown in the context of the article. Do not indicate under the figures and tables that this is your own (author's) development or your own calculations because it should be so a priori. Column and row names in tables should be clear and complete.

Carefully study each sentence, each paragraph, and the entire text of the article.

Dear Pancawati Hardiningsih,
the manuscript FINANCIAL AND NON-FINANCIAL INFORMATION: A LITERACY OF THE RELEVANCE OF ASIAN VALUE SUSTAINABILITY REPORTING IN INDONESIA, submitted to Investment Management and Financial Innovations Journal, needs to be revised.

Comments: I want to emphasize that you should consider all previous recommendations and editorial comments in the revision.

Also, our journal strictly observes the principles of publication ethics, including when talking about citing the works of other scientists and the works they published earlier. Any loanwords, including text loans (even insignificant), are unacceptable without mentioning their author.

We kindly ask you to pay attention to the widespread problem of wrong citation when Author A somehow gives (mentions, retells) the text fragment from the work (published by Author B), which contains the reference to other work (published by Author C).

In this case there are two options of correct citation:

- 1 – cite the work of Author B and note that he/she, in turn, cited the work of Author C;
- 2 – directly mention the work of Author C as well and cite it.

Do not forget that you can also use direct citations, that is why please use the quotation marks and when citing the source please note the page from which this quotation was taken.

You should be absolutely sure that you did not violate the principles of publication ethics. If there are at least small doubts that there can be loanwords in your text, we kindly ask you to check the manuscript for plagiarism by yourself using the special instruments (plagiarism detection software).

Dear authors,

Also, the plagiarism report attached.
Please remove plagiarism and ABC.

Plagiarism implies the use another author's work without permission or acknowledgement. Plagiarism may have different forms from copying word by word to rewriting. While defining plagiarism the following definitions are taken into account:

Literal copying

Copying the work word by word, in general or in parts, without permission or acknowledgement of the source. Literal copying is clearly plagiarism and is easily detected by plagiarism software.

Substantial copying

Replicating substantial part of the work without permission and confirmation of the source. In determining what is "substantial", both the quantity and the quality of the copied content are relevant. Quality is measured by relative value of copied text comparing to the whole text. Where the essence of the work was copied, even not very big part of it, plagiarism is identified.

Paraphrasing

Copying may be made without literal replicating, used in the original work. This type of copying is known as paraphrasing and it may be the most difficult type of plagiarism to reveal.

Plagiarism in all its forms is unacceptable and will lead to immediate rejection of the paper along with possible sanctions against authors.

Our journal strictly observes the principles of publication ethics, including when talking about citing the works of other scientists and the works they published earlier. Any loanwords, including text loans (even insignificant), are unacceptable without mentioning their author.

Dear authors,

I confirm the receipt of the APC payment.

Attached you'll find a paper for first proofreading before publication.

Please check the text of your article and correct mistakes (if any). Inform me if there are any corrections indicating page/line/column.

Pay attention, only changes to the title of the paper, list of authors or scientific errors will be considered and further approved by the publishing team. We reserve the right to make the final decision regarding style and the size of figures/tables/references.

I look forward to hearing from you soon.

Kind regards,

Valeria Matiukhina

I have read the final draft of the manuscript and made revisions (yellow highlight) according to your instructions. I would also like to inform you that we have also added the name of one author who actually contributed to the writing of this paper. In this regard, we have updated the Cover Letter (in the attachment). The final draft of the manuscript and Publication Agreement is in the attachment.

Thank you for your cooperation.

Kind regards,
